

International Security Faculty Position

The George Bush School of Government and Public Service invites applications and nominations for a position member as an Associate or advanced Assistant Professor in the field of International Security. Of special interest is expertise in one or more of the following areas: (a) conflict and dispute resolution, (b) cross-cultural communication, (c) the role of non-state actors and international organizations or (d) ethnic and regional conflicts. Successful candidates must demonstrate a commitment to high quality research as manifested in a record of scholarly publication. Individuals with experience or demonstrated interest in policy issues are particularly encouraged. The selected faculty member will teach graduate students anticipating careers in international affairs.

Established in 1997, the Bush School is a non-partisan school of public affairs that offers professional degrees in international affairs and public administration at Texas A&M University. The residence degree programs are very competitive and attract students from throughout the United States and abroad to study with a multidisciplinary faculty. Faculty scholarship is vigorously encouraged through an affiliated research institute and various incentives. Further information is available at our website at <http://bush.tamu.edu> <<http://bush.tamu.edu>>

Review of applications will begin on November 14 and will continue until the position is filled. Send a formal letter of application, vita and three letters of recommendation, and a sample of research work to:

MPIA Search Committee
George Bush School of Government & Public Service
Texas A&M University
4220 TAMU
College Station, TX 77843-4220